

Southern Glove Introduces The New Arma Tuff Armadillo Impact Glove

1888 PressRelease - The new glove, named the Arma Tuff Armadillo Glove, is designed for the oil, gas and mining industries.

Charlotte-Gastonia-Rock Hill, NC-SC - Industrial glove manufacturer Southern Glove Inc. has announced that it has added a new product to its comprehensive line of industrial gloves.

"The Armadillo glove is similar to our Sarco Impact styles and offers medium impact protection," explained Jeff Carter, Vice President of Sales, Southern Glove. "It is exceptionally durable and offers amazing comfort and dexterity, at a more attractive price point."

The Armadillo glove has a unique, one-piece TPR (thermoplastic rubber) padded back to protect the back of the hand, fingers and thumb. Styles offered include poly/cotton corded double palms in natural and high visibility green and orange, and orange silicon dotted single palm. The TPR back is available in high visibility orange or green. These styles offer excellent dexterity and are extremely comfortable to the wearer. All styles come with a three-inch neoprene cuff and pull tab and Kevlar® reinforced thumb crotch for extended wear. The Armadillo glove is available in sizes medium through XX-large.

Headquartered in Newton, North Carolina, Southern Glove is a family-owned and operated industrial glove manufacturer, providing top-quality industrial finger, hand and arm protection products and industrial aprons to customers throughout the United States since 1945.

Southern Glove's products are available exclusively through a national network of authorized glove distributors throughout the United States. The company also carries an extensive inventory of products located at its Newton, NC, location.

For a free production quote or to find an authorized Southern Glove distributor near you, please call Southern Glove toll free at 1-800-222-1113 or request more information at <http://www.southernglove.com>.

###